Prosecutors often try to make an example of a defendant by filing a number of charges that may not fit the situation.

Canadian employers and suppliers of chemical products will be required to transition to the new WHIMS rules.